One hundred years young

by Ariel White

Sephrona Sisson didn't want anyone to make a fuss for her birthday this year. But when you turn one hundred years old, folks tend to want to celebrate a little bit.

Friends and family joined Sephrona on September 5, to mark her one hundredth birthday, at a celebration near Carnarvon. The guest of honour was pleased to see so many people come out for the afternoon open house. "It's good to see the family out. They are what keep me going," said the birthday celebrant.

Sephrona Sisson was born near Carnarvon on September 5, 1898. She had two brothers and two sisters, Violet, Sylvia, Reginald and Ivan. She was named after a school teacher, Miss Sephrona Haskell. Haskell boarded with the family for a time, while teaching at the school in Carnarvon.

Sephrona remained at home with her parents Clair Henry and Louisa. After her parents passed away, She began working as the telephone operator in Stanhope in 1951. She was the voice on the other end of the line in Stanhope for 16 and a half years, until her small North Shore Road office was closed and the phone system was merged with another. As the central operator, she was on call for telephone service around the clock. Although the telephone hours

Rotating strikes possible at HHSS

High School teachers in the Trillium Lakelands District have now become part of the rotating strike action across the province. The announcement was made Saturday after what a press release from the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF) described as, "...the school board's unilateral imposition of changed terms and conditions of employment."

The notice means that the high school teachers throughout the district, including those at HHSS and the Lindsay area high schools, could walk off the job. The union has announced that it will be giving 24 hour notice of any school(s) that may be closed due to the strike action.

"It is not an action we wanted to take," president of the OSSTF Haliburton teachers, Laura Willis, commented. She said the action was taken to speed up negotiations between the board and teacher representatives.

LAST TOUCH: Artist John Lennard signed his work Friday morning to mark the completion of the mural on the wall of The Times building. The project, which began in mid-June, depicts the early logging days of Haliburton County. A special coating will now be applied to protect the art from the elements.

for public use were during the day, she would sometimes receive late night phone calls, especially if there was an emergency.

Sephrona Sisson still lives on her own, although her family is never too far away. During the winter she spends her time at one of the Chambers family cottages on Twelve Mile Lake, while her summers are spent at her homestead near the Stanhope Airport.

Earlier this year, Sephrona suffered a fall at her home so she has spent time a little closer to home lately but she feels fine now. "I went to the hospital and the people there couldn't believe that I was 99 years old," said Sisson.

Although Sephrona was quite content just to have friends and family visit with her on her birthday, she also received several special birthday messages from some rather important people, including Queen Elizabeth, Prime Minister Jean Chretien, and Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson. This certificate was particularly special to Sephrona as Hodgson is married to her niece Marie.

Sephrona Sisson attributes her longevity to the joy of having her family and friends close to her throughout her life. Many of those who made her life so enjoyable were on hand last week to help her celebrate the start of her second century.

Hope and family support keep cancer survivor going

by Jerry Grozelle

During a time in her life when she should be enjoying her family, especially her two young grandchildren, Gregory, and Gillian, Minden resident Vicki Cross has other things to worry about. She is living with a disease that everybody dreads. Vicki was diagnosed with cancer in October of 1993.

Feeling that something was wrong, she went to her doctor. Within a week and a half, she was recovering from surgery.

"It all happened so fast, I didn't have much time to think about it," she said.

Even so, she said, "It was quite devastating. You kind of go numb. You don't know what questions to ask."

"I always thought that if you were diagnosed with cancer you'd be dead the next day," she said.

It's now almost five years later and Vicki Cross is still very much alive, in spite of some setbacks along the way.

Vicki said she's not sure which was harder to endure, the first time she was told she had cancer, or three years later, when she was told it was back and there was nothing they could do for her.

"It's hard to tell which time was worse," she said. "After three years of going back for checkups and everything seemed to be fine, I began to think and hope that maybe I'll beat it -- maybe I'll be fine."

The news of the recurrence of the disease was devastating for Vicki and her family.

"I felt very helpless... abandoned," she said. "Every time you go for a test it's very hard and very frightening because you don't know what the results will be. Then, one day you go and they say 'sorry, but it's back'. You just collapse. You think, what now? Where do I go from here? How much time do I have? What can be done? You panic. You look for help. You look for encouragement."

The setback sparked a renewed enthusiasm to find answers.

"It's hard to accept," she said. "You look for second opinions and any information you can find about new treatments; about new discoveries."

The Canadian Cancer society has been very helpful.

"They have a 1-800 information number. It's really a marvelous information source," she said.

Vicki's husband Brian Cross accessed more information on the Internet, and other doctors were consulted. With all the sources of information, they learned about different clinical trials that are being conducted. New drugs and techniques are being tested to determine their effectiveness, but only a very limited number of candidates qualify for these tests.

"There is always something new. You have to ask lots of questions," she said. "It's your life. You have to be prepared to try things."

After consultations with her doctors, Vicki was able to begin a type of chemotherapy treatment which was only approved within the past year and a half. She goes to Princess Margaret Hospital in Toronto every three weeks for these treatments.

"It gives me hope," she said. "I feel if I can just control it for now... if it gives me another month or two, maybe by then something else, something new will come along that I can try. I just couldn't sit and wait for this disease to spread and not do anything about it. I feel I have to try something, even if it gives me just two days more. I'd be happier trying something than just waiting."

"I hear a lot about quality of life because of side effects of treatments. But, I don't feel its a great quality of life sitting and waiting," she said. "At least if I'm trying something I feel I'm going to get another day or two."

Approval of new drugs and treatments, especially in Canada, is painfully slow. Vicki says it is very frustrating when the federal and provincial governments are cutting their health care budgets.

"It must be difficult for the doctors to decide what care can be given with their limited resources," she said.

Vicki's family and friends are very supportive.

She says its very touching to get cards from, family, friends and acquaintances, offering their support and prayers.

"It makes you feel as if you have to go on," she said.

"Brian has been a really great help and support. Some days, I guess I have 'bad hair days'," Vicki said, with a chuckle, showing that she hasn't lost her sense of humour through this ordeal. "The same goes for my children (son Douglas and his wife Rhonda from Ottawa and daughter Laura, who lives in British Columbia). They have been great support. Vicki said Rhonda and Douglas checked every source of information in the Ottawa area, looking for possible treatment options. Laura, a teacher, was able to spend the summer in Minden with her parents. Vicki and Laura took some courses together at Sir Sandford Fleming College in Haliburton over the summer. One of the courses was weaving, which was taught by a Navajo woman from New Mexico. Already a weaver, Vicki said the course was very spiritual. She also enjoys working with clay, making tiles and pottery.

"It's very therapeutic," she said. To Vicki, being supportive means not dwelling on her ailment. "We just go about our business," she said. "If I was to sit and dwell on it, I'd miss the beautiful moments of the day."

On the other hand, she admits it is impossible to ignore the situation she faces.

"Some days you feel you're living in a certain contradiction. Sometimes I wonder, will I reach another birthday or my grandchild's birthday or my child's birthday, or Christmas. And, then I turn around and I start making plans for what I'm going to do next summer."

She said she plans to do the things next summer that she didn't get around to doing this summer.

Living with a life-threatening disease makes one place a higher value on each day and perhaps makes the senses a little more acute. It also instills a sense of urgency to do the things and see the sights that have been put off.

"Before, I took everything for granted," she said, adding that she appreciates life more these days. "It doesn't matter how well you feel today, you have to face the reality that you might not be here a month from now."

Vicki and Brian travelled to the Grand Canyon, where she was overwhelmed by the awesome beauty of the landscape. They also explored the desert region of Arizona, where she says she was impressed with the majesty of the Saguaro cactus.

"They were just starting to flower when we were there," she said. "They were so beautiful."

Vicki, Brian and Laura also went to Stratford in August to enjoy a play at the Stratford Theatre. Another trip, to take in another performance, is planned for later this month.

Vicki Cross is a survivor. She is an inspiration to those in a similar situation. She should also be an inspiration for those who will be participating in the annual Terry Fox Run For Cancer Research on Sunday, September 20. The Marathon of Hope that cancer victim Terry Fox started in April of 1980, provides hope for a cure. Vicki Cross has participated in the Minden Terry Fox Run the past two years and she plans to walk the course again this year.

It is events like the Terry Fox Run that continue to provide hope for thousands of people like Vicki Cross. Hope that the dollars raised in Minden or Haliburton or any one of hundreds of sites around the globe will be the ones that assist researchers to find the cure for cancer.

The Minden Terry Fox Run Committee's goal is to raise $7,500 this year, in the hope that Gregory and Gillian Cross and other youngsters like them will have the opportunity to grow up knowing their grandmothers.

In the meantime, Vicki Cross and other cancer survivors of all ages will cope as best they can.

It is impossible to predict what each individual would do if faced with similar circumstances. One of Vicki's reactions was to clean her closets. She can't explain why, but it was an urge she had to satisfy.

"Maybe after cleaning my closets I had to enjoy them," she said. "Everybody has to cope in their own way."

Group proposes monitoring of sexual offenders

by Jack Brezina, Editor

A group of Minden parents is preparing to challenge both the federal and provincial governments over the way convicted sex offenders are released back into society after having served their sentences in jail. They want the Canadian authorities to adopt a United States style registry, which requires that individuals who have committed sexual assaults against children register with a local authority. Those responsible for the registry would monitor the whereabouts of the released offender and inform communities of the presence of such an individual.

The parents have been lobbying hard, both publicly and behind the scenes, and while they have found some receptive and understanding individuals within the political realm and the bureaucracy, more often than not their inquiries have been stalled by buck passing and what they describe as an endless run-around. The treatment has left them frustrated, but it has also strengthened their resolve to see changes enacted to protect their children and the children in all communities across the country.

The effort to change the law and create the registry is being promoted by seven Minden area residents: John and Jane Cooper, Jennifer and Curtis Ketner, Mike Elder and Brenda and Jeff Manser. The seven are frustrated by the fact that there is no statutory requirement that a community be notified when a convicted sex offender moves into the area.

While they hope their campaign will result in similar protests across the province, and eventually across the country, the imminent release of a man from the Minden area, and the possibility he could take up residence again in the area, has spurred them to action.

Six years ago, Greg Austin was convicted of seven counts of sexual assault and two counts of invite sexual touching, all involving female victims under the age of ten years, and perjury. He will soon have served his complete six year term and will be released from Warkworth Prison November 23. Because he has served his complete sentence, there are no conditions attached to his release. He will be free to walk away from the prison and take up residence anywhere in Canada.

While there are those who suggest that anyone who has served his or her time in jail has paid his debt to society under the law of the land and should be free to do whatever he wants and go wherever he wishes, there are others who are concerned about the possibility that individuals with a record of sexual assault will likely re-offend.

In some cases, the group suggests, offenders refuse treatment while in jail. Since they began researching the situation, they have learned of numerous sexual offenders who have committed crimes similar to those for which they spent time in jail, a short time after being released. In some cases, they note, the prison authorities have in fact predicted the individuals in question would likely repeat their crimes, but nothing can be done to detain, force rehabilitation or monitor their whereabouts after they have served their time in jail.

It is these reports which have prompted the parents to spearhead a campaign to get the laws of the country changed to protect their communities from individuals like this. While one case in particular provides the common focus that brings this group together, they emphasize that this is not an effort to pillory this single individual. The case is a symbol for this group's cause which reaches out across the nation.

"People just do not realise how many convicted and released sexual offenders are living in our communities," Jane Cooper stated. "The police know, but according to the policy at the local detachment, information about these individuals is not released unless they are ordered to do so. We think this is wrong."

On more than a few occasions, the parents have run into a 'head in the sand attitude' that has left them wondering if they were in fact doing the right thing. They note that many people believe that sexual offenders are forced to receive treatment and counselling while in prison. They suggest the exact opposite is true and that while help is available, the choice is left to the individual whether to take advantage of the programs.

The same people think that sexual offenders are monitored after they are released and that intervention is close at hand should they attempt to re-offend. If they have served their complete sentence, they are under no obligation to be involved with any monitoring or counselling program unless they do so voluntarily.

Still others believe that the offence is not that serious...that it only involved some inappropriate touching. "This is not a matter of 'good touching and bad touching' such as they teach in the schools," one parent commented. In addition to gross sexual violations, the offender often uses threats of violence as a way to ensure the victims' silence.

The group has contacted Halibur-

The start of a great tradition

Outside Canada-- $50.00

$100 reward

Editor:

A chain saw, combined with nothing better to do than to destroy, has resulted in our beautiful hand-carved, wooden Township of Snowdon sign being ruthlessly removed from in front of the Township office on County Road one.

As a cottager of many years in the Minden area I was disappointed to see yet another act of wanton vandalism. Since nothing official appears to be being done by Township official to get the sign back, according to what I have been told, I am prepared to offer a $100 reward for the safe return of the sign.

Hazel Regan,
Toronto.

At the right, Snowdon Township's new sign identifying the location of the municipal office. The notation at the bottom reads, "To remove sign, no chainsaw necessary. Simply grasp the wooden post and pull. Have a nice day."

Mount Snowdon appeal

Not new money

Editor:

To clarify an impression created in last week's edition of The Times, the approximately $109,000 grant announced for the Haliburton County Library Board by the provincial government is not new or additional monies as the article appears to suggest.

In point of fact, these monies represent the regular provincial grant for library services in this area.

While crucial to the maintenance of public library services, the grant is in itself actually forty per cent less in total than it has been in previous years.

Please do not hesitate to contact this office if additional information is required on this or any other library related matter.

Joel Levis,
Haliburton County Librarian

The wrong side of the law

Regular readers of this column will know that I harbour an abiding affection for a particular species of criminal — to wit: the Dumb Crook. I'm not sure whether it's a steady diet of junk food, overexposure to daytime television or something in the water, but there can be no doubt that the lower echelons of the underworld are getting demonstrably stupider day by day.

Which may account for the Homer Simpson Bandit.

This is a guy that Toronto detectives would dearly like to 'interview' soon. He's hit three Toronto-area banks so far, and — against all odds — made a clean getaway each time.

Which is amazing, because not only does he present tellers with misspelled holdup notes ("Give me yor mony. I hav a gon.") — he compounds the farce by looking uncannily like the idiot cartoon character Homer Simpson.

"It's the way he looks and the way he holds himself" says Toronto detective John de Courcy. "It's important that we catch him before he enters the next stage, before he becomes aggressive."

Yeah. And shoots himself in the foot, or walks into the bank vault thinking it's the way out.

I say, enjoy what few free days you have left Homer, and take solace in the knowledge that you are carrying on a fine tradition among lawbreakers.

Lawbreakers like Eugene Krubbs and Nigel Hunt, two less-than-brilliant British thugs who decided to steal the cash box from a grocery store in suburban London not long ago.

Messrs. Krubbs and Hunt managed to jimmy open the front door and make their way to their target — a large black steel box bolted to the wall. After much grunting, swearing and skinned knuckles, the boys wrenched the box free and started lugging it out of the shop. To their dismay, the box began to emit a shrill buzzing sound. What kind of a cash box was this? As lights went on and windows were raised up and down the street, the lads threw the box on the ground. They stomped it. They heaved large rocks at it. They even tossed their coats over it. Still it shrieked at them.

Finally, with neighbours hollering "Stop! Thief!" They manhandled the box to a bridge over a nearby canal and levered the thing into the water.

They could still hear an eerie wail, but this time it was coming from the sirens of the police cars waiting for them at both ends of the bridge.

A police officer with a megaphone informed them that they were both under arrest....

....for stealing a burglar alarm.

Things didn't go much better for David Morris, a West Croydon stick up artist who employed the tried and true 'hold up note' method.

Well, it should have been tried and true. Mister Morris's note was neatly typed and grammatically impeccable. It read: "I have a gun in my pocket. I will shoot you if you do not hand over the money."

Alas, when he tried to hand the missive to a young lady in a drug store, she refused to read it, fearing an obscene message.

When he tried it on the Korean owner of a confectionery, the man shook his head sadly, explaining he couldn't read English.

The operator of a Chinese restaurant said he would gladly read the note, but he would have to first go into the back room to retrieve his reading glasses.

David Morris waited patiently. Long enough to be there when the police showed up as a result of a whispered phone call placed by the not-so-nearsighted store owner.

I'm beginning to understand the true significance of that theme song for the old TV cop show Dragnet.

The one that went "DUMB DE DUMB DUMB!"

If organized crime was truly organized they'd have a minimum standards aptitude test for prospective crooks to weed out the intellectually unfit.

Without it, they just give themselves a bad name.

Parents campaign for offender registry ton-Victoria -Brock MP John O'Reilly who replied that he had passed their letter on to the Minister of Justice.

Victoria Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson responded by saying he is concerned about the issue, but noted that sexual offenders are detained in federal prisons and so the regulations surrounding their release are a federal matter. Hodgson pointed out the province has already enacted a bill which allows police to notify victims and the public of the impending release of a criminal. They have been told that a representative of the MPP's office will be in attendance at a meeting planned for October 4 in Minden.

"The Reform Party has been very supportive of our effort," one of the parents commented. "Pat Dunn, (the Reform candidate in the last provincial election), has been very helpful in putting us in touch with speakers for the meeting."

They have begun a writing campaign, sending out letters to the editors of community newspapers across the province, the Toronto Star, Maclean's and to CTV's Goldhawk. In many cases the letters were published and Jane Cooper has received phone calls of support from individuals in those areas where the letters appeared. Other media have also shown an interest in their campaign. The Kingston Whig Standard recently interviewed the parents. On the other hand, some media outlets have refused to become involved. (Goldhawk refused to take on the case.)

Their experience with bureaucracy has been equally two sided. While some individuals within such organizations as the OPP and Solicitor General's office, among others, have been helpful, others have been discouraging. Despite a number of enquiries seeking support for their effort from various levels, the Children's Aid Society has yet to respond to the group's campaign.

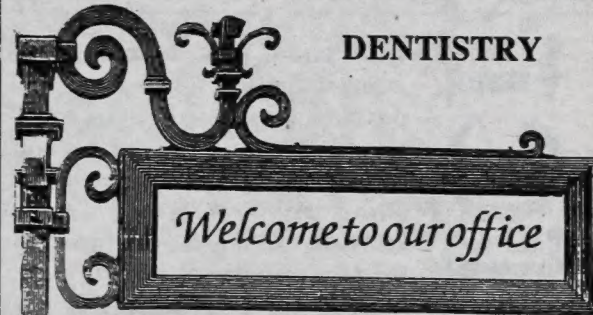

Interestingly, someone at Bell Canada became an ally of the group. When Jane Cooper was contemplating faxing the letters to newspapers across the province she realized she would be facing a substantial phone bill. She called Bell and asked if something could be done to assist. The faxes went out, over 100 of them, at a flat rate of $15.

The group plans to hold a meeting October 4, at Archie Stouffer Elementary School, to solicit support for the changes being proposed for the Canadian Criminal Code which would impose restrictions and public notification procedures when sexual offenders are released from jail and move into a community.

"Parent have a right to know who is out there,"

Cooper said. They are hoping to generate an interest that will translate into action in communities across the country. "We must change the laws and create restrictions that will make it difficult for offenders like this to hurt others."

In the second part of this report we will examine the changes the group is proposing for our criminal system.

Rock Bass Derby nets 390 pounds

Crystal Lake is 390 pounds lighter after the fifth annual Crystal Lake Marina Rock Bass Derby, held September 6. Frank Brandi, the new owner of the marina was delighted with the response to the derby, which was a month later than usual this year because of the change in ownership.

Marina treasurer Bob Mitchell added that he and Brandi were delighted with the support shown by the local merchants. Twelve sponsors made sure there were prizes for each of the more than 50 participants.

Registration fees for the event were $1 per single and $2 per family. The registration fees were put into prizes. About half of the registrants were families.

First place in the 12 and under age class went to Jamie Hamilton with 26.3 pounds. Davie Hickey was second with 23.3 pounds. Vanessa Cordick was third with 12.3 pounds.

First prize in the 13 and over age class went to John Ross with 25.6 pounds. Mike Ross was second with 25.1 pounds and third went to Shane West with 19 pounds.

The Dzikowski family took first prize in the family division with 25.8 pounds. Second prize was won by the Barnes family with 22.3 pounds. The Sully family took third with 19.8 pounds.

Curling season is upon us

by Sandy Cole

The crispness in the evening air has prodded the Minden Curling Club into action, bringing out the equipment and getting ready for the 1998-99 curling season.

This year's open house registration will be on September 23 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. for both regular and junior curling clubs. As soon as the ice is in, there will be a free ice time period for people to come out and give curling a try, or if you have already curled before, come out and get back into the swing of things. The free curling dates are: October 13 to 16 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., October 16 and 17 from 7 to 9 p.m. and October 18 from 2 to 5 p.m. Whether you have never curled before, curled years ago or curl regularly, this free time is for you.

Did you know?

Curling is easy to join and learn? Come out and register and we will teach you the game! You can curl once, twice or three times a week for the same price. You can curl for all, or half the winter season, whichever half you prefer. Curling is an inexpensive recreational sport (it costs approximately $8 to $10 per week for up to three times). Curling is a great way to get out of the house in winter; a great way to meet new friends; and a great way to get a little exercise and have a lot of fun. Curling is a sport for all ages.

Besides the regular club, we have junior and senior curling available. Curling requires no skill before joining (I'm proof of that!). Curling is just like life, you learn as you go.

Come on out and see what the fuss is all about. Maybe you'll love it!

$382,000 boost

Elk Restoration project

The Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources has committed $382,000 to the Provincial Elk Restoration Advisory Committee to help restore elk populations in Ontario.

Natural Resources Minister John Snobelen made the announcement in Sudbury on behalf of Northern Development and Mines Minister Chris Hodgson, who chairs the Northern Ontario Heritage Fund Corporation (NOHFC), which is providing the funds.

"This funding is a sign of the Ontario government's commitment to the importance of conserving and rehabilitating native wildlife populations throughout the province and particularly in the north," Snobelen said.

"Wildlife and wildlife experiences are an important part of our northern heritage and we all look forward to the day when large herds of elk again roam the northern Ontario wilderness," Hodgson said.

Snobelen was in Sudbury to unveil Elk Odyssey, a video on the hard work and dedication to restoring elk to Ontario's wilds. The 45-minute documentary premiered during a ceremony at 5 p.m. to officially release the video at Cambrian College. Earlier this year, a herd of Alberta elk was transferred and released into the Ontario wild as part of the provincial Elk Restoration Project.

550 elk released near Sudbury

"This new video is a tribute to the initiative, dedication and sense of partnership of everyone involved with the Elk Restoration Project," Snobelen said. "I commend the efforts of the partners, sponsors, volunteers, advisors and technical workers who are making elk restoration a reality in Ontario."

The Provincial Elk Restoration Advisory Committee leads the Elk Restoration Project that brings together 12 partners and a host of sponsors dedicated to restoring elk to parts of their former range in Ontario. Last March, the first phase of the five-year project began when project members and volunteers successfully released elk from Alberta into the Ontario wild near Sudbury. Several other areas, of the province are being considered as potential release sites in the coming years.

"A total of 550 elk will be released into the wild over the next five years," said Ivan Filion, vice-president of academics at Cambridge College and co-chair of the advisory committee. "The elk restoration project will help sustain a species that has generated substantial growth in eco-tourism and adventure tourism sectors elsewhere."

In addition to the NOHFC funding of $382,000, the Provincial Elk Advisory Committee, with help from sponsors and supporters, will provide the balance of the $920,000 funding for the initiative.

High school teachers join rotating strikes

Chair of the Trillium Lakelands District Board, Cheryl Murdock, of Minden, said she wasn't surprised by the action of the teachers. She said the board imposed changes to the terms of the contract reflect the rules as spelled out by the provincial government's Bill 160 in which class sizes have been set at 22 students and secondary school teachers are required to spend 1250 minutes per week in the classroom.

"Teachers are facing an increased number of students in their classroom every day as a result of the board's imposed changes," said Peter Carroll, the president of local which covers all of the Trillium Lakelands District. "There are 40 fewer teachers in our classrooms than would have been provided last year. This does not ensure quality education. On the contrary, teachers will have less time to provide individual attention and assistance to their students," he said.

Willis concurred with that assessment. She said the local teachers cannot provide quality education to their students if their schedules demand they be in the classrooms for all four periods of the day. "People do not understand that to teach a 76 minute lesson requires time to prepare for the class and do the marking of paper which follows." She noted that teaching four out of four classes in a day leaves little time for the individual attention that some students require.

"As professionals, we have given up lunch time, which we are entitled to, and most of us arrive early and leave late to be available to the students," she said, adding that teachers often are called on to fill-in for other teachers who call in sick or are away from the school on student activities.

Murdock said the two sides were scheduled to hold two more bargaining sessions this week and the teachers have indicated there would be no strike action until those meeting have been held.

In addition to the rotating strikes, the teachers at HHSS have so far refused to supervise extra curricular activities. This action, plus the elimination of the late bus from the HHSS schedule has halted all sports and clubs at the school. "The student morale is pretty low at this point," Willis said. "They are incredibly frustrated and are angry." She suggested the anger should be directed at the provincial government. According to Willis, almost half the student population at HHSS, approximately 350 students, are involved in extra-curricular activities, including sports teams, clubs and other groups.

Teachers have been forced to choose between voluntary activities and their assigned classroom and supervision duties. The increased number of classes and students results in extra time required for preparation, marking and reporting. After that there is no time left for voluntary activities," said Pam Constable, Chair of the teachers' negotiating team.

One event which apparently is going to take place is a dance this Friday night at HHSS. The dance will be supervised by administration and volunteers.

According to the OSSTF press release, "Further mediation talks have been scheduled for this week and there is no reason why this board cannot reach a deal that would restore needed teachers to the classrooms in Trillium Lakelands and provide the same quality education that there has been in past years."

Open house to be held at Waverly Brook Farm

- submitted by Lynn Duncombe -

Mark your calendars for a big, fun Fall Festival at Waverly Brook Farm on September 20. The open house begins at 2:00 p.m., and continues into the evening. All are welcome. Events will include hay rides, music, art and skill sharing, a bonfire and a potluck barbeque in conjunction with the Haliburton Co-operative Farmers Association. Bring warm clothes if the weather is cool; something to barbecue, plus a dish to share; arts, crafts, or skills to display; musical instruments... please come and join in this fun event.

This was one of many exciting happenings discussed at the most recent CSA potluck meeting. It was attended by 28 members and graciously hosted by Beth Johns, Noris Turner, and Doug Crump, on beautiful Kushog Lake.

The CSA was pleased to announce that it has been financially viable for the second year in a row. It was reported that the kids' program has proven to be successful in co-operation with Family Services.

It was also announced that Claire Sylvan will be sponsoring the Community Kitchen through Family Services and CHACE.

Members were also updated on new buildings going up on the farm; preparations for rare breed animals that will soon be arriving; ideas for a meditation garden; weekly harvest figures; community services; memberships; and of course the gardens. It was a good opportunity to express our thanks and say good-bye to Doug Crump, an intern, and Alex Tyler who worked on the farm all summer. We will miss them. New members are welcome to join in. If you are interested please call Jean or Godfrey at 457-2214.

The next potluck meeting will be October 25th at 4:00 p.m. at the Duncombes.

KINMOUNT DAM REPAIRS

Repairs to the Kinmount dam are scheduled to begin on Tuesday, September 15. The river will be drawn down to its lowest level as of this date and will remain at this level for approximately four weeks. Following this period the water will gradually be raised until it reaches the normal level for this time of year. Anyone who experiences a shortage of household water due to this dewatering process should contact Ross Wray at 705-286-5212.

The Ministry of Natural Resources will be monitoring the affected area upstream from the dam to determine if any fish or wildlife become stranded due to the lower water. Should any member of the public observe a problem with stranded fish or wildlife they should call Dana Kinsman at 705-286-5226.

Soyers Lake property owners express their concerns

Property taxes high on list

The following report is a summary of the items discussed at the Soyers Lake Ratepayers Association Annual Meeting on September 5, 1998.

Property taxes

Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Jeanne Anthon reviewed the many changes that have taken place over the past year in the area. She discussed council's decision to examine re-zoning the corridor along Highway 35, the county's strategic planning process, county re-alignment and concerns over property tax rates.

Many cottagers were bothered by increases in taxes on their waterfront properties. A brief poll of those in attendance revealed a range of tax increases between 20 and 75 percent. Anthon told the audience that taxes for her property on Mountain Lake had increased approximately 40 percent. She stated that looking at the increases by percentage was deceiving as she knew of residents whose taxes had increased but who were paying just a couple of hundred dollars previously. Anthon stated that the new tax process was confusing to many. "We have no idea how they (the province) made these decisions," said Anthon.

"You have choices. Yes, you are paying for services that you may or may not use, but that is typical of any community that you buy a home in."

Members of the association asked Anthon numerous questions regarding the municipal taxes. She replied that the increase was based on the actual value assessment; but that the deadline to protest individual assessments had been extended.

Deputy Reeve Jerry Rome also spoke to the association members, regarding the county's work to upgrade the fire departments' radio systems. Rome told the audience that upgrading the systems that could be used county-wide system would help to obtain 9-1-1 emergency services.

Cottage numbering system

Scott Weston, chair of the Emergency Numbering Program, reviewed the status of the lake-wide initiative to number all of the cottages and homes for emergency purposes. He stated that the directional signs had been placed on the entrance roads to Soyers Lake. Along with the signs, those residents who have paid for their signs, will also receive the steel post on which the individual property signs can be installed.

According to Weston, this will add consistency to the program, allowing emergency response teams to find the locations easily. The blue and white signs cost $20 and display an even number for homes on the lake and odd numbers for backlot homes. The signs should be delivered by Thanksgiving and Weston expects that all of the signs should be up for next spring.

Increase in membership fees

President David Pengelly raised the usually contentious issue of membership fees and the organization's financial needs. He stated that due to a variety of reasons, the ratepayers association would be requiring additional funds to continue functioning. The association now has to pay an independent laboratory for water quality testing, work for which the Ministry of the Environment once paid, an increase in FOCA (Federation of Ontario Cottagers Associations) dues, and the anticipated cost of sign repair and replacement with the emergency numbering program. These items would be a financial strain on the organization without an increase in membership dues. "We're taking on extra costs because we are paying for things the government used to pay for," said Pengelly. Pengelly recommended that the dues increase from $15 to $20. The membership voted unanimously in favour of increasing the dues for next year. Those who have prepaid will be spared the increase until next year.

Treasurer Neale Harris retires

Secretary Lew McCorrison announced that long time Soyers Lake cottager and association treasurer, Neale Harris, has announced his intention to retire. Although the 82 year-old will fill in until a new treasurer can be found, Harris stated that he was unsure if he would be returning to the lake.

McCorrison reviewed Harris' contributions to the lake, noting that he has been a cottager on Soyers Lake for over 50 years, half of which he had been on the association executive. His wife Mona was also the secretary from 1975 to 1977. Harris has been the treasurer since 1985. "While his terms may have been strange, the record keeping hasn't. The records have been meticulous," said McCorrison. "We've enjoyed working with you over the years and appreciate your wise counsel." On behalf of the association, David Pengelly gave Harris a few humorous gifts. Ever the number cruncher, Harris wanted to know how much his gifts would be costing the association.

Sign on

Scott Weston displays one of the new Soyers Lake identification signs that will be posted at residences around the lake, while Soyers Lake Ratepayers Association President, David Pengelly, and Secretary, Lew McCorrison, right, look on. The signs will help direct friends, family and most importantly emergency vehicles into the Soyers Lake area properties. The installation of the signs is expected to be completed by next spring.

Environment committee meeting this Saturday

The County Advisory Committee for the Environment has decided that its meetings will routinely be held on the third Saturday of each month.

The meetings are held at various locations around the County. The next meeting will be at the County Building in Minden on Saturday, September 19, at 11 a.m. The October meeting will be held in Monmouth Township, and the November meeting in Sherborne Township.

The Committee invites the general public to attend, be it to observe, or to raise a particular issue. Meetings are open to everyone who cares about how the natural environment in Haliburton County is used.

For more information, call Carolyn Coburn at 286-2484.

TSW report

Losses to evaporation were considerable over the eight days up to Tuesday, September 8. The Haliburton area lakes declined five per cent by that date. This was about nine per cent below the 23 year average for the date, but above the lowest year in the 23, by 10 per cent.

Very low flows were discharged from the reserve lakes over the past week, but this failed to halt their decline.

The surplus is long gone from the Kawartha again and near minimum flows are now set on the Otonabee and Trent rivers.

Lake Simcoe-Couchiching has been in decline too and a flow reduction to near minimum has been made there as well. The lake remains about five centimetres above the rule curve, but is declining more quickly than the curve does. The flow to the Severn is below average for the month and is near the usual minimum.

This report was issued by Trent Severn Waterway staff September 10, 1998.

Scout/Guide registrations

Girls interested in participating in the Girl Guide or Sparks programs in Minden this winter are reminded of the registration taking place Tuesday September 15 at the Scout Hall behind the arena.

Sparks are 4 to 6 years of age while guides are 9-12.

Registration for Beavers, Cubs, Scouts and Venturers is scheduled for September 16 in the same location.

All groups need leaders and parent volunteers. Anyone interested is invited to attend the registration nights.

They played math games with aliens, learned about WHALES, and spoke with grade 3 students in the ARCTIC. Then they didn't want to stop for recess.

Victoria County Library program

Summer book safari winners bag their prizes

There was lots of fun and monkey business as the Victoria County Public Library held its Library Jungle Safari wrap-up party on August 24.

The evening began with a story, included 'puniddles' and ended with safari 'trophies' in the form of book prizes. Participants also 'bagged' bookmarks, stickers, special coupons, book-bags, pizza, pop, animal crackers and draw prizes.

Seventy-two people were entertained and educated by special guest Ben Couglin and his Creatures Great and Small. Snakes, salamanders, tortoises, turtles, toads and frogs either enthralled or 'grossed-out' safari participants. For the 'reptilially repulsed' Ben also had a few guinea pigs and a dwarf rabbit.

Safari prize winners included: Emily Coolidge, Krissy Weber, Jacqueline Brown, Meaghan Ferguson, Ashley Paquette, Jacob Anness, Jenna Clark, Kaitlyn Noble, Lisa Jackson, Alana Wilson, Laura, Amanda Gray, Haley Dawson, Malaura Lucas, Jesse Brydges, Sophia Darling, Dean

Armitage, Larissa Brydges, Jesse LaFleur, Jessie Clark, Aleia Anness, Annie Joudrie, Sarah Coolidge, Jenna Oliver, Stacy Cameron, David York, Scott Allan, Daniel Thurston, Katie Harrison, Amber, Christine Blackmore and Meagan LaPlante.

Special thanks was expressed to the Safari Reading Program partners: The Bookfinder, Fenelon Falls; Coboconk Variety; Dairy Queen, Lindsay; Donna Villemaire, Little Britain; Elsie Boyce, Fenelon Township; Gull's Nest Restaurant, Coboconk; IGA, Coboconk, Katie-Anne Durward, Fenelon Township; The Kent Book Store, Lindsay; McDonald's Restaurant, Lindsay; Pizza Hut, Lindsay; Pizza Pizza, Lindsay; ValuMart, Lindsay.

Finally, here is a bit of library trivia: Did you know that the Victoria County Public Library processes approximately 1,000 interlibrary loan requests every month? Let us help you access the information you need.

An enjoyable afternoon at Maple Lake

Hello again. Time to catch up on our news. We seem to be settling into our routine once more. It certainly makes life a little easier for everyone concerned.

We need to make a correction to our column of last week. Our tea party on the third was hosted by the ladies of the Kinmount Anglican Church, not the Kinmount Legion as we reported. We must have got our wires crossed somehow. Our apologies for this error. Anyway our tea party was much enjoyed and we certainly had a good turnout for it. Thanks to the ladies for providing us with the goodies and spending their time with us. In the evening a small group of residents joined Donna for her last session of "Quiet Time". We had fun looking over the many photographs of China and Hong Kong - places Donna visited a few years ago. Many thanks Donna. We certainly enjoyed getting together with you once more, and hearing all about your vacation.

The following afternoon about 20 of us boarded the Hyland Rover and headed for Lottie Hatton's residence for refreshments. Lottie is the mother of Rick Edwards. Her home is on Maple Lake and she was kind enough to have us over. We had a wonderful time enjoying the tea party in her garden overlooking the lake. Her neighbours heard of her plans and they were there to help Lottie feed the multitude. We send a big thank you to Lottie for her kindness and to her neighbours who helped her out. What a great afternoon!

Our weekend was fairly quiet. John Menzies visited us on Saturday afternoon and he entertained us with his lovely music. Reverend Burgess joined us on Sunday afternoon for his pastoral visitation. We extend a warm welcome to Nancy Roberts, RN, who has joined our nursing staff recently.

We must mention the beautiful latch rug hooking that is hanging in the quarters of Walter and Vera Stevens. Walter hooked this rug a few years ago. It is a scottish drum major in all his glory. Walter entered this rug in the local quilt show a few years ago and won first prize for it in its category. When you are visiting here, ask Walter and we're sure he will be only too pleased to show it to you. It really is wonderful piece of work.

Our chapel on Tuesday with Pastor Power was well attended. During the service we remembered Anne Mackay. In the evening, Make a Joyful Noise, a group from Wilberforce was here and we spent a delightful time with them. Afterwards we enjoyed tea and toast with them.

Hooray! For those of us who were moving into new quarters recently we now have our personal televisions and phones hooked up once again. Thank you. Everything is looking just great here, lovely and clean now that the dust has settled.

Jean McClintock and Sara Carter were here on Wednesday afternoon and we certainly had fun with the sing-song. Jean and Sara are from the West Guilford Baptist Church. That evening we were entertained with more music with the Norland Hillbillies. They certainly provide non-stop music and we have been enjoying them over the past few weeks. You should have been here to hear Edna McElwain play the piano and we were delighted to hear her on the spoons. You must realize how much we enjoy having music and once again we must thank all the groups and individuals who take time out to be with us and enlighten us with their music.

We also extend a warm welcome to Dr. Fiddler who has recently joined our medical staff. We say goodbye to Dr. Judy Smith who is heading for Oshawa. Best wishes to you.

As we write this today some wonderful aromas are coming from the kitchen in the auditorium. Alice Todd is in there with Marg, our volunteer and they are baking blueberry crumble cake and poppyseed cake. What we wouldn't give to be able to sneak some as it comes out of the oven. We haven't managed to yet...but who knows?

Our tea party today is to be hosted by another group of ladies from Kinmount. We will have to tell you all about it next week. Well, that's it. We have run out of news. So take care and we will talk with you again next week.

Around the County Town

by Nora Snyder (call 286-4425)

That nip is in the air. On one hand it feels exciting because the fall is so beautiful. On the other hand it is telling us that cold season is upon us. A bittersweet time.

The mural is finished!! How wonderful it looks!! John Lennard certainly has done himself proud and therefore passed that on to Minden. I get so much pleasure from seeing it there. Already I can't imagine it not being there; it is part of our landscape. The next one is in the works and is going to be in an interesting place, over the stores. As I wrote that I was imagining how wonderful it will be to see that water on the mural in the dead of winter. I miss the lakes so much in winter!!

And the hospitals!! Those drawings of what is coming to our two communities are quite impressive!! Our community is certainly growing. I bet there are a lot of people who never thought they would see the day, but this time they were wrong!! We're moving on!!! I am also aware of the numbers of people moving up here. A lot of them are bringing special talents which could only help us all. I know one man who is interested in building houses out of straw and stucco!! I had seen a program about that on T.V.. Great insulation!! Lots of new ideas floating around.

Over 140 attended the Corn Roast hosted by Guido and Linda at Kash Landing Cafe in Ingoldsby Labour Day Sunday. The event was a fund-raiser for the roof fund for the Ingoldsby United Church. Linda reported it was a great end to the summer season. A big thank you for the generosity of those who attended. The fund for the roof received a hearty boost.

Guido and Linda run such a "neat" place. I love going there for lunch especially. The food is good and the atmosphere is warm and friendly. I am not surprised they are this community minded to put on a fund-raiser.

Audrey Vick would like to remind everyone that Euchre starts in Lochlin on September 15 and in Gelert on September 22. The action starts at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Centre in each location. It will be great to be in contact with that part of the county again, now that fall is here.

Eleanor and Merv Bunker and Harv Bunker and his friend Ethel Baker, all of Minden, and Verna and Gren Draper of Haliburton enjoyed renewing friendships with relatives and former friends and neighbours as 94 former residents of Altona and surrounding community met for an annual lunch together at Haugen's Restaurant in Manchester. This group had gone through expropriation for the proposed Pickering Airport which has never been built. Now all these people are scattered over a wide area of Ontario.

The Royal Canadian Legion Branch 441, Kinmount, held its draw on September 5. First prize of an electric barbeque was won by Earl McCaughen. The second prize, a food hamper, was won by Dwight Fountain. The Legion congratulates the winners and thanks everyone who participated.

I have had some guests staying here who were here on behalf of the Genealogy Group. Ruth Burkholder, president of the Association For The Preservation of Ontario Land Registry Office Documents (APOLROD) was in Minden to speak to the group and to thank the volunteers who have been working hard to make an inventory of all LRO records. Nancy Stinson, Linda Cummins, Carol Miles and Elizabeth Mugridge have been working on this inventory. It is good to know there are people in our community who are interested in and willing to work towards preserving our history.

Keep your news items coming in!! I know there is lots going on!!

SCORING NEWS

Seniors Bid Euchre played at the Minden Legion on September 8, produced the following high score winners: Marcel Roussel, Bess Cox and Ruth Kellett. The hidden score was found by Ida Young. Milt Fletcher and Helen Lee won the two moonshots. Great afternoon for all!!

Again, for good reason, a big thank-you goes out to Fern Donnelly for all the work she does in getting things ready for the afternoon of Euchre at St. Paul's Friendship Club. Katie Parker appreciates her efforts a great deal. On September 7, Helen Lee took lone hands; high woman was Alice Sedgwick; Norm Lee was high man; low was Jessie Preston: Alice Sedgwick who hasn't played with this group for a while, also won the 50/50 draw. It's true. Newcomers do well at all these card events. Not just the fun, but winning too!!

At Stanhope bridge on September 8, three small slams were bid and made. Ross Fletcher and Len McNeice, a great bridge pair, won the first one!! Jack Croucher won the second and third with partners Dorothy Strype and Morris Hansen. There was a tie for third in the top players of the day. Jack Croucher and Len McNeice pulled that one off with a common score of 5390. Ross Fletcher was second with 6260 and Dorothy topped them all with 7430!! Now a little birdie phoned with the news that Vange Croucher was celebrating a special birthday last week and I don't know if that had anything to do with Vange not being in the winners circle. Whatever the reason, HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Vange!!

On September 3, at Echo Hills Apartments, playing duplicate bridge, the North/South winners were: first, Mike Collins with Nick Lehoczy; and second, Stella McMillan with Ross Davies. East/West winners were: Vange Croucher with Maria Lehoczy; and Grace Smyth with Dorothy McIntyre.

Euchre played at the Minden Legion on September 3 saw Ellie Langpohl and Bill Sandford win most lone hands. High scores were taken by Iris Taylor and Rob Evans. Marie Dennie and Jack Chilton saw the low scores. Other prizes were won by Mary Kellett, Vi Edgerson and Helen Lee.

Stanhope Bid Euchre, played on September 9 had four moonshot winners. The high scores were: Helen Lee, 280; Jeanne Penick, 281; Rob Evans, 284; Stan Cline, 299; Garth Windsor, 303; and top score of the evening, Pearl Foster with 317.

Best in cards for the week. See you here next week!!!
